

Mecacerc Series

This machine has several axis with aggregates groups working simultaneously making different cut, groove and milling functions.

The load of the three pieces that make up the frame is done automatically, as well as the fastening that is performed by pneumatic clamps that in turn are positioned in the correct place, so that there is no problem of collision with the cutting tools.

This machine is faired for the protection of the personnel.

